What is Data Warehouse?

The Data Warehouse solution is used to drive business reporting and data analysis. The system provides a centralised location and permanent storage space that supports variable data sources. Data Warehouse has the ability to create normalisation of data from multiple sources and deliver powerful reporting. Furthermore, the system provides insight on various operations relating to a range of business areas, such as parts, vehicles, warranty, service and finance.

What are the advantages?

For your business to be successful in the future, you must ensure that you are making the smartest business decisions. With the Pentana Solutions Data Warehouse system, you are equipped with all the tools to help you make the right decision.

Businesses that take advantage of our Data Warehouse system, which contains a complimentary business intelligence tool, will generate greater ROIs and ensure that better decisions are made by using the right data. The centralised data storage location and common format of information in the Data Warehouse delivers business intelligence, allowing you to analyse company data, set goals and track your progress.

With fast access to the data store, your business has the capability to change the view of data and drill into the relevant information. Analysis of history and trends can also easily be generated and reported on. Data Warehouse guarantees that your business decisions can be made quickly, and are based on credible facts which are supported by the most accurate data.

Who can benefit?

General and departmental managers, as well as financial controllers can all apply information from the Data Warehouse to decision making processes. Pentana Solutions have built Data Warehouse as an optional stand-alone component of MDS.
